I am of the belief that every individual deserves to have and achieve success as defined by them, whether this is an opportunity to develop healthy relationship skills, set career goals, begin to understand the cycle of addiction and process of recovery, or healing unresolved grief, anxiety and depressive symptoms.

My goal as a therapist is to assist my clients along this journey and provide the tools for growth and change. I meet my clients where they are in their process, and encourage increased self-awareness, insight, compassion and love for self.
